

ROUND-UP SOUVENIR EDITION
PENDLETON, OREGON, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1917

MAVERICK RACE AT THE ROUND-UP IS FREE
FOR ALL IN WHICH STEER IS SURE LOSER

This display shows a few of the exciting moments of past Round-Ups as caught by the faithful eye of the camera. At the top is shown the always exciting maverick race in which a long-horned steer is given a running start and at a signal is pursued by a mob of twenty or more cowboys each with swinging lariat. The first to get a rope over the brute's horns wins the money. This picture was taken during the 1916 Round-Up. The picture just below and to the left shows an outlaw about to do the "fallover." The "fallover" horse is dreaded by all riders for it places him in an extremely dangerous predicament. Opposite on the right is J. H. Strickland staying on top of a "high roller." In the center Foxhound is shown trying to disqualify Johnny Judd in 1914. That he failed is shown by the records for Judd took third money in the bucking contest that year. In the lower left hand corner is shown F. W. Sperry Steele of Mitchell, Montana, winning second in the cowgirls' bucking contest in 1914. In the right hand corner is pictured Vera McGinnis, the only cowgirl who has ever done the drunken ride at the Round-Up. At the center, bottom, is Nettie Hawn of Fresno, California, winning the cowgirls' bucking contest in 1913. She is riding Snake. As those who have seen the Round-Up can testify the above sights are not exceptional. Instead they are the usual thing only many times it proves impossible for the photographer to catch the best part of the real thrillers. Sometimes they try to do so and are forced to run for their lives, for be it known that the cameraman's role at the Round-Up is not an easy one.
